

Dr. Gabriella Uhl, Art Historian, Critic & Curator

Gabriella Uhl (Hungary) is an art historian, critic, curator, and a lecturer; she lives and works in Budapest, Hungary. Currently she is an associate professor at Károli Gáspár University of the Reformed Church in Hungary where she mostly lectures on contemporary art and curatorial studies.

Gabriella Uhl has curated numerous exhibitions and projects: in 2013 she was appointed as a curator for the National Pavilion of Hungary at the 55th Venice Biennale with the project Fired but Unexploded. She became the chief curator of Budapest Photo month festival in a frame of the European Month of Photography, and she is the member of the curatorial and editorial board of the international photo network.

As a researcher she specialized in marginal and Roma Art. She is the author of many publications on the contemporary Hungarian and Central-European art scene and photography as a medium.